

NMSU WRITING SERVICES

Typing and Computer Services

No exceptions to deadlines or format requirements can be made for problems arising from computer malfunctions or the student's lack of computer proficiency.

Information & Communication Technologies (ICT) maintains several general use computer labs that you may use. Please consult the ICT web page for up-to-date information or you may inquire at Jacobs Hall, room 205, 646-5239.

A workstation for the visually impaired is available in Jacobs Hall, room 205. TDD is also available in this lab.

For more information contact Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) at 646-1840 or e-mail help@nmsu.edu or you may visit the Computer Center on Stewart Street (between Sweet Avenue and Williams Avenue).

University Statistics Center Services

The University Statistics Center provides competent and timely statistical assistance in the form of data processing and statistical design and analysis to all members of the NMSU community upon request.

The center's services are usually cost free; however, if the work is directly related to a project funded through external funds, it is customary for the center to recover its expenses from these funds. This cost-recovery policy does not apply to service provided to graduate students in their in their master's or doctoral research, or to other research that is directly funded only through internal sources.

Appointments can be made by calling 646-2936 or by visiting the Statistics Center office in the Business Complex, room 234.

Writing Center

If students can benefit from additional one-on-one writing consultations, they are encouraged to take advantage of the NMSU Writing Center, located in Room 102 of Clara Belle Williams Hall. Call (575) 646-5297 or see <http://www.nmsu.edu/~english/resources/writingcenter.html> for hours. The Center is free to students and provides a peer environment for students to work on their writing. The Center does not offer editing services or grammar instruction. Instead, the Center offers an opportunity for students to discuss and to work on their writing with a peer who is also a trained writing consultant. All consultants are graduate students in the English Department and instructors of undergraduate writing courses. While issues regarding proofreading and editing may come up within the session, they are not the sole focus. Graduate students can make the best use of the Center services by scheduling regular, weekly appointments and by bringing a reasonable amount of writing to cover within a 50-minute appointment. Please come early in your writing process rather than waiting until the last minute.